I construct networked installation and multi-player performance in participatory impromptu mode. I draft sci-fi narratives in film scenario and artwork imagination. I build social interface with transgressive plots and open network that permits public participation. Engaged in media activism for two decades (the 80s and 90s) in New York city, I concluded my NYC period with a cybernoia film FRESH KILL (1994) and the first Guggenheim museum web art commission/collection BRANDON (1998-1999). After I.K.U. (2000)'s release at Sundance Film Festival, I set out to create large scale installations and networked performance internationally. From homesteading cyberspace in the 90s to my current retreat to post-crash BioNet, my current cycle of works take on viral love and bio-hack. In 2017, FLUIDØ, a cyphepunk scifi movie premiered at Berlinale; Wonders Wander, a mobi-web-serial was commissioned by Madrid Pride. In 2018, I joined Gwangju Biennale with UKI, virus rising, a 3 channel immersive installation; participated at Taipei Biennale Post Nature exhibition with collective Mycelium Network Society. Currently I am developing Unborn0x9, an open hardware hack project with ultrasound echo-stethoscopes and UKI, a cinema interrupted by a mobile app. game and working on a solo exhibition for Taiwan Pavilion at Venice Biennale 2019.
